What the Congress Is Doing.

HE Senate foreign relations committee began open hearings upon the peace treaty with Germany, with Bernard M. Baruch as the first witness.

The President sent to the Senate the treaty between this country and France, guaranteeing France that the United States will go to its aid if France is attacked by Germany. It was referred to the foreign relations com-

Seven republican senators who have been friendly to the idea of a league of nations drafted a program of reservations which they insist must be contained in the resolution ratifying the treaty of peace and league of nations covenant if the treaty is to have their support. This program is expected to furnish the ground for a compromise between the President and the senators who have been insisting that the treaty, particularly the league of nations, cannot be ratified in its present form.

The senate District subcommittee resumed its hearings in connection with the investigation it is making into alleged profiteering in foodstuffs and other necessities in the District of Columbia.

Senator McKellar of Tennessee introduced a resolution for the appointment of a bipartisan committee of six senators, to be appointed by the Vice President, to investigate the high cost of living in the United States and to make a report and recommendations to the Senate at the earliest possible date. It was referred to the committee on audit and control of the contingent expenses of the Senate.

John Skelton Williams, controller of the currency, completed his testimony before the Senate banking and currency committee, which is considering his nomination to succeed himself as controller. The committee will hear two more witnesses, Frank J. Hogan and Williams Nelson Cromwell, within the next two weeks, and the hearings will then be closed.

What the House will do is problematical, and dependent largely on what the White House asks. The House adjourned until Tuesday.

Representative Igoe, democrat, of Missouri thwarted unanimous consent for adopting the proposal of House Leader Mondell yesterday for a series of three-day recesses. He said he would not agree to such a resolution until provision was made for consideration of his resolution authorizing the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the prices of shoes. He argued in favor of this resolution before the House rules committee yesterday.

After a hard fight in the ways and means committee over the licensing feature, the Longworth bill providing a high protective tariff and a licensing board to restrict foreign importations of dyes so that the war-born American industry might be developed was reported to the House late Friday. The republican majority agreed that this measure should not be brought up in the House until after the proposed recess.

* * * * Speaker Gillett replied to the President's letter yesterday, stating that he believed the President had authority under an act of Congress to handle the railroad situation, and that one purpose of the proposed recess was to allow the House committee to plan what should be done when the President's authority ceased.

The Mondell soldiers' land settlement bill, embodying Secretary Lane's plans for farm homes for American soldiers, sailors and marines, was reported to the House yesterday by Chairman Sinnott of the public lands committee. It carries $300,000,000 working capital.

versity, president of the National Educational Association. The war has emphasized the situation, Prof. Strayer said; by opening up a tremendously increased field for college-trained men, who have been heavily drawn upon for various government posts and as experts in advising the peace conference. Many of these men have realized the possibilities that are open to them in other directions than teaching and will not return to the colleges, he declared.

"For a long time," Prof. Strayer added, "it has been true that practically no college salaries have been high enough to draw the best men and hold them unless they had other sources of income. With the tremendously increased cost of living this condition has been aggravated and unless our universities are to suffer keenly and through them the men who are to be the leaders of the coming generation, some means of increasing the income of the university. who are to be the leaders of the coming generation, some means of increasing the income of the universities must be worked out."

A supplementary statement issued by Prof. Hartley B. Alexander, professor of philosophy in the University of Nebraska and an instructor in the Columbia summer school, declared that the state universities of the west are awake to the seriousness of the situation and are everywhere increasing the salaries of the faculties to a point high enough to offset the increase in the cost of living.

plication in "Charge of Treason Against U. S."

ARTICLE HELD LIBELOUS

Special Dispatch to The Star. BALTIMORE, Md., August 2 .-

Claiming that the defendant newspaper by its publication of a dispatch from a leading national newspaper agency implicated him "in a charge of high treason against the government of the United States," Maj. Jacob J. Dickinson of Washington. newspaper correspondent and magazine writer, today, through the law firm of Knapp, Ulman & Tucker, filed a libel suit in the superior court against the A. S. Abell Company, as owners of the Baltimore Sun! claiming $10,000 damages.

The declaration of the suit alleges that on December 14 last the dispatch referred to appeared, under a conspicuous caption in the newspaper of after the declaration of war between this country and Germany the plaintiff had been in the employment of one George Silvester Viereck. On the same day, it is alleged, the defendant newspaper charged that Viereck in the period following the declaration of the war had pursued activities on be-half of the German government in which he had been engaged in this country before the war. In the presa dispatch referred to, it is alleged, the statement was made that the plaintiff was employed by Viereck to act as a secret agent in getting information in the interest of the German government which was to be used in hampering the government of this country in its manufacturing of war mu-
